“Gesture is the single most important element in the drawing.”

Step Two.

Draw a line from the head, representing the neck. This line is not necessarily any actual contour or line that you see on the model but a general feeling of the attitude of the model. Continue this line, representing the neck, pulling from the head, into the upper body down to the hips. You should be more concerned with how the lines show the action of the model, rather than any actual line that you see on the model. Look at the examples on this page to see the variety of ways that this can be accomplished. These are not the traditional stick figures that you see in many basic books on drawing. They are lines that show the flow of the movement and relationship of the parts in a simple way.

Step Three.

Continue in the same way, drawing the legs. Notice that all of the lines do not have to be connected. Remember, “there are no rules, just tools.” It is important to remember the simple fact that what the viewer sees are the lines you put down on the paper. The lines have to convey the sense of action in your subject by themselves. To
